

Photos
& Text:
Jason Tong

© the2ndrule

“No to
war...
... you know
the sand,
the wind,
it's hot... my
No hair...
good,
not at all.”

“I just
take
orders.

It's my job.

If the boss
says pack
up and go
home,

gladly
we will.”

“...maybe,
they didn't...have...
...or buy
those helmets that
catered to my
pertruding ears....

They just said
I'm not
combat
fit.”

“You!
Halt!

This is a
restricted
military area.

No
cameras
please.”

“There are,
many political
aspects we sh.....!

Hey!

Do you know
that candle
almost burnt
me to death?

Dude...

I'm outta here.

The end.”

“If Tony
says
it’s ok,

I guess it
should be fine then. ”

“Is there
a war?”

I’m still in my
plastic
wrap.

No,
I’m not
aware.

I wouldn’t even
know if a plane
crashed into a
building.”

the2ndrule Action for Peace

the2ndrule will be staging a peaceful protest on the war in Iraq over the Internet.

If you would like to take part in this peaceful protest, please send a photo of yourself holding a candle together with a short caption on how you feel about the war in Iraq to editor@the2ndrule.com by 15 April 2003. The photos will be published as a collection for the2ndrule April 2003 "Action for Peace" issue.

Unlawful assembly laws do not apply on the Internet.